There is always room for improvement. This is why it is important for an educator to have a personal growth plan. I have many downfalls, however there is no reason why I can’t correct those downfalls or try to improve upon them. Most likely the area that I need the most work on is technology. I am highly intimidated by technology and all of the things that it can do. I need to become more acquainted with technology and how to utilize it. By becoming more familiar with technology I will in turn become more comfortable and then learn how to properly use technology.

To achieve my personal growth I will try to take classes and ask more questions. Intimidation is a big factor and to get over that factor I need to face my fears. I will seek help, which will help me to eventually be able to work with technology by myself.

I will be able to determine if I have achieved my personal growth plan by how efficiently I work with technology. I will have achieved my goal when I can successfully complete my work and competencies on my own without any difficulties and without any fear. By becoming familiar with technology and it’s uses I will have accomplished my personal growth plan.
